DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claim 13 is objected to because of the following informalities: In claim 13, the language bridging lines 2 and 3 of the claim does not make sense. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.
- 3. Claims 1, 2, 5-10, and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Moores (Fig. 2; page 1, col. 2, lines 14-60; page 2, col. 1, lines 1-46).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 5. Claims 3 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Moores taken together with either Holtzapple et al or Ahlstrom.

Art Unit: 1724

Holtzapple et al (Figs. 4B, 8B, and 10B) and Ahlstrom (Figs. 1 and 3-6) each alternatively disclose rotatable agitators including gas delivery means within the respective rotatable drive shafts, the agitators being associated with surrounding cowling structures at the gas/liquid contact end of the shafts. It would have been obvious to an artisan at the time of the invention, to provide the agitator of Moores with a surrounding cowling structure, in view of either of the alternative secondary references, since such would tend to confine the gas bubbles within the area of greatest turbulence and shear, thereby increasing the contact efficiency between the phases.

6. Claims 11 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Moores taken together with any one of Beers, Rodoz, or WO 02/21945.

Moores (Fig. 2; page 1, col. 2, lines 14-60; page 2, col. 1, lines 1-46) as applied above substantially discloses applicant's invention as recited by instant claims 11 and 12, except for the agitator including a coil structure wherein the wires of the coil are confined and connected solely at the agitator head. Moores (16 in Fig. 2) does clearly teach a wire coil structure (16) that is connected to the agitator head, but which also connects to the cap structure (15) spaced from the gas delivery location.

Each of Beers (Fig. 1), Rodoz (Figs. 1 and 3), or WO 02/21945 (Figs. 1-4) alternatively disclose a agitator coil structure that is located and connected completely at the lowermost end of the rotating drive shaft, such that agitation of the liquid is most vigorous at the point of gas/liquid contact within the overall apparatus. It would have been obvious to an artisan at the time of the invention, to modify the wire coil structure of Moores, to be solely located and connected to the bottom end of the agitator, in view of any one of the alternative secondary references, since such would improve the contact efficiency by increasing the turbulence and shear at the point of gas delivery to the liquid being treated.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
